

AMVETS POST 917 comes through for a Veteran in need

WWII Veteran Albert Graziani pedaling away on his new recumbent bike thanks to AMVETS Post 917

In mid October 2015 WWII veteran Albert Graziani was in need of a recumbent bike for rehabilitation for injuries sustained in a fall a few weeks before. His son Gary contacted some Veteran organizations and the word was passed along. Once the word got down to Post 917 then the rest became history. Without further ado the bike was researched, ordered on October 30, and shipped right to the veteran's home in Connecticut. Delivery came to Mr. Graziani on November 2. In the following email his son Gary acknowledged receiving the bike:

“OMG !!!!! You guys are the best!!!!!!...I will send over a picture of my father in action when it comes...You have NO idea how touched we are by this...AND.....Thank you for your service and present service to the guys....God Bless you all!!!! Gary Graziani”

Gary did send us a picture of his father on the road to recovery with his new recumbent bike. Mission accomplished! That's what helping a veteran is about.
